

They

Julius L. Simon - March 27, 2024

Fellow citizens, the evidence of our government's betrayal unfolds before our very eyes, a litany of transgressions against the very essence of democracy and human dignity. With egregious disregard for the toil and sweat of the common man, they squander our hard-earned contributions, funneling riches into the coffers of the unworthy, while the true backbone of our nation, its diligent workers, are left to shoulder the burdens of neglect.

They have laid siege to the bastions of truth and liberty, arresting journalists who dare to challenge their narrative, silencing the brave voices that would speak out against their tyranny. Crime festers unchecked in our streets, a testament to their indifference, exposing us all to the specter of violence and disorder. They assault our children's innocence, endorsing practices that violate the very essence of protection and care owed to our youngest and most vulnerable.

Our schools, once havens of knowledge and thought, have been commandeered to propagate their perverse dogmas, poisoning young minds with ideologies alien to our cherished values. They have lent their support to radical factions that sow discord and ruin, endorsing chaos under the guise of progress, turning a blind eye to the violence perpetrated in their name. Our health and autonomy are gambled away in reckless experiments, with hastily endorsed treatments foisted upon an unsuspecting public, the full extent of their repercussions yet unknown. Under their rule, justice is perverted, transformed into a weapon wielded against dissenters and political adversaries, a clear subversion of its true purpose.

We must awaken to the reality that this "they" exists—a nebulous amalgam of power and secrecy, an architect of our oppression. Recognition of this force is our clarion call to action, a unifying beacon for all who cherish liberty and justice. In this critical juncture, awareness is our weapon, solidarity our shield. Together, we confront not just the manifestations of tyranny but its very essence. Our resolve is steadfast; our mission, clear: to illuminate, challenge, and ultimately overcome the shadowed architects of our discontent.

Once your eyes are open they can never close. If they have yet to open, it is because you are afraid to look.
